

RE: Agreed Order for Custody Evaluator; Agreed Motion and Order for Continuance, Agreed Motion and Order Allowing Attorney to Withdraw

LD
Wed 2/25/2015, 1:12 AM
James Zwaanstra [REDACTED]

📧 📧 ⬆ ↶ Reply | ⌵

James,

Can you help me understand why we are agreeing to a custody evaluation rather than seeing if the judge will even order it? I would rather not agree to an evaluation unless Judge Thompson says to do it. Or do the judges always grant a custody evaluation when one is requesting it, regardless of what basis they have for it? I could see that as being a reason to just agree and avoid a hearing over it. I am just not completely understanding why we are so quick to agree to it and if there's a chance that she won't grant it, I would rather not voluntarily go through it and put [REDACTED] through all that stress. And how can he afford to pay for an evaluation when he can't afford more than $100 child support? It just doesn't make sense.

Also, can we let the judge appoint the evaluator? I searched the internet on the list from his attorney and did not find good reviews on any of them. I realize a lot of these reviewers may just be angry about their outcomes and venting but it would be nice to find a few fair reviews. Dr. Charlene Sabin had the worse:

http://www.vitals.com/doctors/Dr_Charlene_Sabin/reviews

<https://www.ratems.com/doctor-ratings/165389/Dr-Charlene-Sabin-Portland-OR.html>

<http://www.yelp.com/biz/sabin-charlene-md-Portland>

I just want to make sure we get an unbiased and fair person.

[REDACTED]

Thank you,
Loredana

[REDACTED]

